EDITORS NOTE:

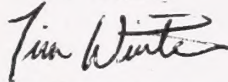

This year's FRIEZE has changed slightly from last year's edition. We decided to include the same sections, but switched to a higher quality paper. The making of this issue was not without some hassles. We hope that the stress filled hours we spent working on the FRIEZE will translate into many hours of enjoyment for everyone.

SPECIAL THANKS TO:

- All of the FRIEZE representatives who donated their time, effort, and pictures.
- Our mentor, FAZ, for all of his insight and his help in designing the cover.
- Jay Harkey at Colorcraft for his assistance and patience.
- All of the College Park Merchants who supported our efforts with their advertising.
- The Greek Community for their support.

THANKS!!!

Graffiti wiped out by FIJI

by Sinead O'Brien

Diamondback staff writer

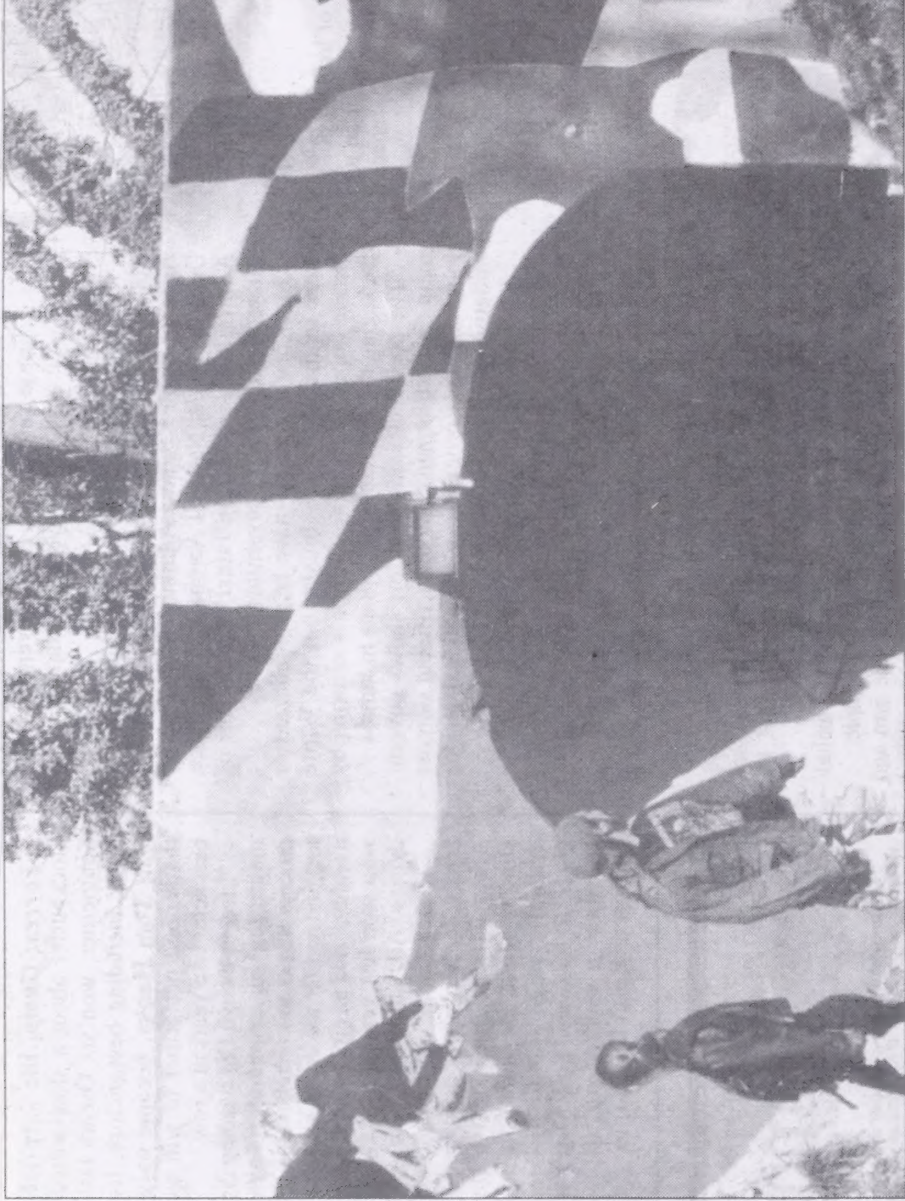

The bridge on Chapel Field is no longer covered with graffiti, thanks to some brothers in FIJI fraternity who spent their Spring Break painting it.

The bridge, which is now decorated with an underwater scene complete with dancing turtles, is the first step in the fraternity's philanthropy endeavor at campus beautification. They said they hope to make it an ongoing program.

Jon Littlefield, a junior fire protection engineering major, was the artist who drew the scenes for the 10 to 12 fraternity members to paint. After five days and about 30 hours of work, the fraternity is about halfway through. They hope to finish by the end of the week.

"We went right to [Littlefield] because we know how talented he is," said Kevin Joyce, president of FIJI and a senior speech communications major.

The bridge was an eyesore that a campus as pretty as this does not deserve, he said.

CHRIS HOFFMAN—The Diamondback

Once bearing the tags of numerous vandals, the bridge on Chapel Field has taken on a new and more aesthetic appearance due to the efforts of FIJI fraternity members.

A chaplain came down the hill week when they stopped to thank to take pictures of the bridge him.

The $450 worth of paint used was part of an alumni donation given in doing the work, while some Polish passers-by said they marveled at how people in America will paint anything. Littlefield said he met many people last the Greek system," said Joyce.

The end of the bridge facing the Chapel has a state flag and two people sitting on a hill, which Littlefield says are him and his sister. The tunnel, when finished, will be an underwater scene full of aquatic life.

Sigma Nu distributes safe sex packets

By David Hammel

Diamondback staff writer

Members of the campus chapter of Sigma Nu fraternity strapped on their backpacks early yesterday morning and headed out on a mission to keep the campus safe for the sexually active.

Positioning themselves at various locations around campus, members distributed safe dating packets to anyone who happened to cross their paths.

Each packet includes three condoms, AIDS awareness information, statistics about rape on college campuses, a coupon from Terp Territory and a red ribbon as part of a campaign against drunk driving sponsored by Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD).

and Nationwide Insurance.

Sigma Nu intended to focus its efforts on freshmen and transfer students, according to Rob Locke, rush chair for the fraternity. Locke said these students are more vulnerable to the risks of dating in the 1990s.

"[We] wanted to target new students to Maryland," said Locke, a junior marketing major. "People who've been around campus already know the safety risks."

"Many students come here to the university unprepared for realities of college life," said Sigma Nu member James Rice, a junior journalism major.

"They are no longer restrained by their parents and tend to feel as if nothing can hurt them."

Sigma Nu members had planned to distribute the packets in the common areas of the high rise dorms, but Resident Life would not give them permission to distribute them there.

The campus Health Center, one of two sites on campus that distributes condoms, supplied the condoms for the campaign and helped fraternity members determine some of the contents for the packets.

Anne Anderson-Sawyer, coordinator of the center's sexual health education program, said the condoms and literature involved in the safe dating campaign help educate students to the risks they currently face.

"[The campaign] helps get the word out to more students about the risks associated with sexual behavior in the 1990's," Anderson-Sawyer said.

Sigma Nu members began handing out packets at 7:30 yesterday morning and planned to continue today if supplies remained.

In addition to familiarizing students with the dangers of unprotected sex, Sigma Nu president Brian Lochhead, a junior government and politics major, said the safe dating campaign also helps the Greek system overcome its longstanding reputation of rowdy drunkenness.

Lochhead said, "[The safe dating campaign] provides a little public recognition to see that we are changing from the ... Animal House stereotype."

Known throughout the nation as the gentlemen's fraternity, Phi Delta Theta's Maryland Alpha Chapter exemplifies this description. Through athletics, art, dance, and especially scholarship, Phi Deltas reign supreme among Greek houses. Our close personal relationships with Greek life directors, alcohol policy constructors and judicial board members makes Phi Delt the cog that runs the machine of the Greek system. We sing, we dance, we create; we are -
